Carter Page's Dahlias

Over fifty years ago Carter Page's made a speciality of Dahlias. The large-flowered Doubles, now rarely grown, Pompons, and Singles were then the only classes; but Carter Page's have kept abreast with the times by adding to their lists the pick of British, Continental and American novelties and discarding the least worthy of the older sorts. By this means they have maintained one of the choicest, up-to-date and yet concise collections in the country, containing only thoroughly meritorious varieties selected from the enormous number now in cultivation.

Carter Page's exhibits of Dahlias have received the Highest Awards of the Royal Horticultural Society many times during the past twenty years and at the Spring, Summer, and Autumn Shows, their Dahlias are a conspicuous and important feature.

Dahlias are simple in culture, inexpensive, and certain of success everywhere unless overhung by trees; the only other essentials being deeply dug ground, secure and early staking for the taller sorts, ample water in dry weather, and an occasional application of our special Dahlia Fertilizer and by these easy methods a long and beautiful display of summer and autumn flowers, elegant of form and varied in colour is assured. Our modern rigid-stemmed Dahlias are very attractive as cut flowers, especially the Miniature Paeony, Small Decorative, and Star Classes. Dahlias have long been used as Border plants, and the new Mignon and other Dwarf kinds are admirable also for bedding purposes, as effectually demonstrated in the Public Parks where Dahlias are now probably the most appreciated of the many subjects used.

How can the Tubers best be preserved during winter? is a question often asked. In light soil they frequently survive the winter in the South of England if left undisturbed, but if you dig them up about the end of October, be careful to cut off any damaged roots, dry them thoroughly, give a dusting of lime around the bottom of the old stem and then keep in a frost-proof position covered with dry earth or ashes until April (the time for planting out), or to start in boxes or pots in a heated greenhouse in March.

Everyone interested in Dahlias is invited to join the National Dahlia Society. The Subscription, which entitles members to free admission to the Annual Shows, to copies of all official literature and reports, and to attendance at conferences and meetings, is a minimum of 5/- a year. Full particulars may be obtained from the Hon. Sec., Mr. W. E. Chittenden, "Merissa," Colborne Way, Worcester Park, Surrey, and we shall be pleased to propose new members. The National Dahlia Society's Great Show is held at the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, in September.

Cactus Dahlias

Despite all the fresh and beautiful types of Dahlias, the Cactus still remain very popular, the elegant formation of the flowers with their long narrow florets reflexed at the margins, producing a very beautiful and light effect. We have always recognised that the weak stems of many of the older sorts of Cactus were a serious defect and have endeavoured to include in our collection only such as are erect and sturdy. To those unacquainted with the characteristics of the different varieties, the following collections are recommended.

Pæony and Decorative Dahlias

Al the varieties of both these classes are excellent for garden effect. The flowers are large, abundant, and showy, and always produced on erect stems. The blooms average 5 to 8 inches in diameter—those of the Pæony type having a large open disc, and those of the Decorative a full centre, although in many of the varieties the older blooms often open to the Pæony form.

Dwarf Bedding Dahlias

MIGNONS.

This single-flowered class is very effective when planted about 16 inches apart; they then quite cover the ground and do not require staking. They bloom with extraordinary freedom, the plants being covered with flowers from a very early period until frost occurs if the seed pods are picked off regularly, this being important.

Lawn Grass Seed

DWARF EVERGREEN MIXTURE FOR ALL PURPOSES.

Early Autumn is a very favourable time to restore turf which has become worn also to sow seed for new lawns. Our mixtures produce under ordinary conditions the first season a dense, velvety lawn at one-tenth the cost of laying turf. Our seed is free from weeds, but seedling weeds appear in cultivated grounds almost everywhere, and should be pulled up or cut out when quite small.

Our mixtures are equally suitable for making or renovating lawns.

Our pamphlet, 'The Making of a Lawn', free on application.

Fine Lawn Grass Seed, 1 lb., 2/6; 3 lb., 7/-; 12 lb., 27/-; 24 lb., 52/-

Chrysanthemums

Our Chrysanthemums have all been grown separately in pots and are considerably superior to plants from cutting boxes, which are sometimes offered at cheaper rates. These strong plants are ready from mid March till May, and unrooted cuttings of all varieties can be supplied from early December till end of January at half the prices quoted for plants. Best results are obtained by a preliminary repotting into five-inch pots in April. We supply as strong and healthy cuttings as possible, but take no responsibility for failures.

SYLVIA SLADE, rosy purple, with broad white ring round disc.

Decorative Chrysanthemums

This class is most useful for general culture in pots where an abundance of cut flowers or plants for decorative purposes is required rather than a smaller number of specimen blooms, such as are produced by the larger-flowered Japanese varieties. The plants may be grown either partially disbudded or without thinning. Sorts marked x are late blooming (Dec. to Jan.), and are very serviceable for extending the display into a period when flowers are very scarce.

Strong plants ready end of March until May, 8d. each; 7/- doz.

Early-flowering Double Garden Chrysanthemums

Without special culture this fine class flowers perfectly in the open ground from early September till the end of October. Early May is a good time to begin planting outdoors. After a fortnight, the plants should be cut down to within eight inches of the ground ; they then make very bushy growth.

The period stated are the average times of flowering near London.
